Bow low the head—do reverence to the old man, once like you. The vicissitudes of life have silvered his hair and changed the round, merry face to the worn visage before you. Once the heart beat with aspiration, crushed by disappointment, as yours perhaps, is destined to be. Once that form stalked promptly through the gay scenes of pleasure, the beau ideal of grace; now the hand of time, that withers the flowers of yesterday, has bent that figure and destroyed that noble carriage. Once at your age, he possessed the thoughts that pass through your brain, now wishing to accomplish deeds equal to a nook in fame, anon imagining life a dream that the sooner he awoke from the better. But he has lived the dream very near through; the time to awaken is very near at hand; his eyes never kindle at old deeds of daring, and the hand takes a firmer grasp of the staff. Bow low the head, boy, as you would in your old age be revered.

This "printer joke" was sprung in a vaudeville theater in Topeka. The comedian said he had found a needle in a bowl of soup. "How does this come?" he asked of a waiter, as he held up the needle. "It is a typographical error," replied the waiter; "it was intended for a noodle."—Ex.

As several bachelors got into the station bus one of the men (who was quite a portly fellow) noticed that a certain young woman had a grip exactly like his but that it was placed with the rest of the baggage, on top. In order to avoid any mistake he kept his inside and kept it at his feet. He was soon engrossed with his paper, and did not notice the young woman reach over and draw the grip close to her side. Being of a humorous turn of mind he waited until she was occupied with a book and then pulled the grip to its former position, the rest of the travelers looking on with amused expressions. In turning over a leaf she looked down and suddenly became aware of the removal of the grip. She was quite indignant, and with some force in her voice and manner said, "That is mine!" and jerked it back close to her feet. Touching his hat politely the owner said, with a merry twinkle in his eye: "All right, madam, but may I please get my pipe and nightshirt out? You are welcome to the rest of the things!"—Ex.

In the endorsement of William Jennings Bryan by the Kansas Democratic state committee there are no eulogistic words over the Nebraskan which would denote any remarkable enthusiasm for him by the Democrats of Kansas. Chances are that if one could get right down to essentials he would not find much real enthusiasm for the much defeated presidential aspirant. He seems to be the octopus that has the Democratic party of these United States securely entangled within his tentacles, and the weakness of the party is shown by the fact that he cannot be shaken off.—Topeka Journal.

"A Spinster" writes to "My Dear Gazette": "The bachelor men don't need to fret; they can mosey along from day to day, no girls will endeavor to take them away; for things more tempting the girls may see, on any old branch of the Christmas tree. The bachelor men chew Battle ax the bachelor men are tight as wax; they are only single because they fear a wife might cost them ten cents a year; the bachelor men chew cloves and swear, and use shoe blacking upon their hair; they tie up their trousers with strips of string, and sound like phonographs when they sing; their eyes are bloodshot, their speech is blurred, their teeth are yellow their tongues are furred. The bachelor men don't need to squeal that sort of lumber no girl will steal."—Emporio Gazette.

A very pleasant surprise party was given for Miss Winnie Clawson Monday evening, it being her 17th birthday anniversary. About twenty young people were present and all report a fine time. Miss Winnie received many pretty presents which shows the high esteem in which she is held by her many friends. Those present from South Trego were Ray, May and Jessie Curry and Cliff Martin. All returned home with best wishes for the hostess.

WHY PEOPLE WANT TAFT.

Walter J. Ballard, a Californian, gives the following reasons why the people want Secretary Taft for president:

The people want William Howard Taft for president because he is an American through and through.

The people want Taft because, when he is called upon to face a public question or public duty, he does not ask, "Will it pay me politically to do this, or not do that?" but, on the contrary, his guiding thought is "What shall I do with this question, or this duty, in the best interest of my country." Finding for himself the answer to that self-sacrificing patriotic question, he acts accordingly.

The people want Taft because he has successfully performed every public duty which has been intrusted to his charge, since that day in January, 1881, when he received his first public appointment, as assistant prosecuting attorney for Cincinnati, Ohio.

The people want Taft because of his successful organization of the Philippine Civil Commission his administration of the islands and his adaptation thereto of American forms of government; his missions in those islands to various divisions of natives and their pacification; his vigorous upholding of the flag and the sublimation thereto of the insurrection; his support of American education for the people of all ranks, classes, conditions and creeds; his fearless advocacy then and since and now of the rights of the Filipinos to equal treatment under our laws.

The people want Taft because they realize that the success of his mission to the Vatican regarding our purchase of the friar lands in the Philippines, is all the evidence required to prove that he possesses diplomatic ability of the highest order—such diplomatic ability, strengthened by experience, as will be needed by whoever shall be president of this great nation of ours, in the years of international anxiety and American responsibility which are before us.

The people want Taft because when but recently, revolution threatened our great trade and investment interests in Cuba, he hurried down there, and by diplomacy and candor averted the catastrophe, inducing the malcontents on both sides to accept provisional government at American hands; under which government the island is peaceful and prosperous.

The people want Taft because, though vigorously urged by President Roosevelt to accept a seat for life on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States—the most highly respected judicial body in the world—he remained true to his promise to the people of the Philippines that he would not leave them until civil government was firmly established.

The people want Taft because when the need arose, mainly in the interest of speedy construction of the American Panama Canal, he accepted the great office of Secretary of war, and by personal visits to Panama, by the cutting of "red tape," by care in letting contracts and buying supplies, he is pushing the work to expected completion at a considerably earlier date than appeared possible before the work came under his charge.

The people want Taft because he is a man in every sense of the word; a man who's word is his bond; a man who impresses his virile manhood upon other men; a man whose work is never done while there is any of his country's work to do; a man whose watchword is duty; a man whose simple creed is "My God, my country, my party and my neighbor;" a man who is a true husband, a good father and a patriotic citizen; a man who is loved by all who know him, feared by all who oppose his righteous acts and praised by all who have watched and studied his work.

One loafer, says the Atchison Globe, will stir up more trouble and discord than twenty business men. And a loafer does not always talk small scandal; he dips into public affairs, religion and everything else. Loafers are not always poor chaps, who have overworked wives at home. Many of them have money, and these are the most mischievous loafers in town; They make more trouble than the poor loafer because more attention is paid to what they say. A good deal of the trouble complained of in a town is stirred up by loafers; it is a pity that we have so many. When men have nothing else to do, they abuse each other, or the town in which they live.

At times when you don't feel just right, when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion; not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest. To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol For Dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food. It is sure to afford prompt relief; it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by W. W. Gibson.
